FREE AT LAST

Senior Flings. How many were there? More than most people thought. A Rigatoni Feed satiated the pasta lovers and a senior banquest catered to those who demanded table cloths and elegance. Disneyland and Raging Waters moved those who wanted fast paced action. Spirit Week featured a senior court in the fall, and the Sadie Hawkins dance appealed to the country lovers in early winter. Of all the flings flung, the top three on any senior's list of great moments were the Baccalaurate, the Prom, and the ultimate graduation.

Food, food, and more food were what the seniors sold to earn money for their flings. Candy and Rigatoni Feed topped the list and brought in over $500. Spirit Week also hauled in cash. The seniors brought to shame the underclassmen by winning spirit week with a score of 550 and receiving $100. This brought the seniors treasury to $7,300.

All of the money was spent on the flings: Baccalaureate at Christ Episcopal church in Alameda, the Prom at the San Francisco Fairmont Hotel, and for graduation.

But what came after this celebration? Well for most, more celebration, and then a harsh slap to the face: life after high school.

That special June afternoon in the Willie Stargell field unified any and all seniors for a final exchange of high school memories, tears, hugs, and kisses. This was the day when all seniors felt free at last.

Seniors' Advice to Freshmen

Dear Freshmen,

We seniors feel you need a little advice to help you along your quest, which will one day bring you to the same point we are now. Whether this information is of any importance to you in your actual life, you will have to decide for yourself.

1) To stay alive we suggest you: Never take Mr. Rebensdorf seriously. (especially before drinking his coffee)
2) If you are five feet tall (or less) take any kind of steroids you can get, so that you can reach at least five feet three inches by your senior year. *This is so you won't get stepped on or lost in the main hall.

Please Note: This information does not pertain to seniors who are under regulation height.

3) Always be careful sitting out in the lawn — you never know when a bird might drop a gift on you. Freshmen are their favorite targets.
4) From the upperclassmen themselves Jonathan Dejano "Leave while you still can."
5) Chris Cornell "Get a job."
6) Jennifer Manuntag "Get a life!"

Take note, dear freshmen! The above mentioned facts may help you greatly on your impossible journey.

College Or Bust!

Those seniors who are lucky enough to go to college are unlcuky enough to go through the college application process.

Sometime during the junior year, a college bound student is deluged with mail from colleges. The mailbox is bloated with letters from just about every college under the sun, and the kid decides he can go anywhere he wants. At this, point, his biggest dilemma is to choose between Harvard, Brown, and Stanford.

Then in October of his senior year, the student takes the SAT and falls back into reality. Of course the test is biased. For anybody who scored under 1400, that is.

So, finally he settles on five or so colleges to apply to. "I'll write my essay next weekend," is probably the most used phrase during December.

But sure enough, on the day they are due, the student scrambles into his counselor's office. "Do you have any extra applications? typed envelopes? transcript request sheets?"

Then in about April, the decision letters come back and the student learns that personality and extracurriculars do not mean as much as he thought. So, he moans for a while for not getting into Harvard or Berkeley, but after a week or so, he gives into a severe case of senioritis, and life goes on. Perhaps senior Gary Reyes summed it up best when he said, "Who gives a ---- about college. I'm just glad to be a senior." But then again, perhaps not.

A Tough Season for Varsity Jets

It was a tough season for the Jets, but they made the best of it, even tough players quit the team, and health problems looming over their heads. The varsity Jets started the season with a game against the San Ramon Wolves, loosing 0 to 6. The determined Jets crushed Mt. Eden 28 to 15, the Jets were back in action. Greg Johnson throw 2 for 2 and left Mt. Eden in the dirt, probably the hardest blow to the Jets, by any single team, was the 57 to 8 lose to Pinole Valley. But the Jets had other things to think about, as the big game against the Hornets approached.

On game day the Jets took to the field with a rushing average of 142 yards per game, and the Jets offense ground out a tremendous 431 yards in the 41 to 20 massacre of the Alameda Hornets. Individuallly Joel Thorton ran for 248 yards, Greg Johnson completed 3 for 6 pass attempts, and T. C. Burge ran for 78 yards. The Big Blue Wrecking Crew was dynamite that day.

After the Alameda game, Encinal stampeded the Salsian Chiefs, 39 to 8. Now it was time to get serious, the Jets in order to be in the run for the East Shore Athletic league title had to beat St. Marys. But the Jets could not handle the Panthers. They did not go down to defeat easily as Joel Thorton ran a touchdown in to score for the Jets. St. Mary's Panthers proved tough as they held the vaunted Encinal rushing game to 80 yards. This loss ended any dreams of post season play.

Even the toughest season has positive points. The '88 '89 Jets benefit from younger players who will return next year as veterans. Another positive was the awards or recognition of outstanding Jet players. Myron Mahr was voted most valuable lineman. Toto SueSue was the most valuable defensive back, and Cornell Miller walked off with most valuable player honors. Finally both Myron and Toto made the all league ESAL team.

EHS Football Teams Beat Some Rivals

Although the Encinal Junior Varsity Football team did not make it into the play-offs, they had a very good season. Six wins and four losses sums up the year.

Like the varsity team, the JV's beat arch rival Alameda convincingly. The JV's captilized all year on opponents fumbles, never was this ability more important than in the victory over AHS. Six AHS fumbles preceded the last one on their 5 yard line and that one gave the jets possession and the strategy to run out the clock for a 21-6 win.

During the last game of the season, the Jets proved their strength by slaughtering the Albany Cougars 37 to 0. Ollie King, the teams leading rusher, ran for almost one hundred yards. Assured of their win, in the final five minutes of the game, Rolando Vital scored the sixth and last touchdown of the game and the season.

Encinals Frosh Football Team ran into a few problems this season. The freshmen only had four league games. They won against Bishop O'Dowd and St. Marys. Marco Long, the crews quarterback, and his brother Darius were viewed by the coaching staff as having a promising future with Encinals Football Teams.

X-Country Wins Big, Runners Have High G.P.A.

Two years in the ESAL and Encinal has been league champion both years. Undefeated the Varsity and JV cross-country teams captured the ESAL crown and went on to place fifth in the 2A North Coast Sectionals. According to television commercials milk makes a body great but at EHS running may have developed intellectual ability as the runners won the North Coast Achievement award for having a team grade point average of 3.4.

League coaches voted two EHS men as the best runners in the league. They were Kenny Meagor and Matt Boone, who also spiked down tenth place in the North Coast Sectionals. Blair Venable placed second in the league championships and eighth at North Coast.

Third place in the league championships were the girls of EHS. Our top three were: Karin Grewahl, Christine Roveda, and Salina Tam.

For the first time there was a Lap-a-Thon where each player secured sponsors, then ran laps around the track and earned money. That cash amounted to over $10.00 per runner. The bite was also put on the parents and they too ponied up dollars. Donations by cross-country supporters funded varsity team jackets for the men and trophies for everyone else.

EHS We're on a roll Becomes Theme for '87-'88 Spirit Squads

No doubt about it the varsity fall 1987 spirit leaders were numerous and spirited. The squad had nine pom pon girls and nine cheerleaders, three of whom were males: Eric Mosley, Dun Molina, and Ferd Sioteco. Male muscle let the squad build high difficult human pyramids that impressed the crowds.

USA Camp held in late June was the focus for cheerleaders and pom pon squads daily workouts. Monday thru Friday during the early summer the gang of eighteen practiced, performed, and perfected original routines polished for presentation at the actual four day USA Camp out. Our cheerleaders and pom pon squads proved they could invent and create routines.

During the four day camp pom pon learned routines such as: "BE THERE", "BLUE MONDAY" and "POINT OF NO RETURN". "EHS WE'RE ON A ROLL" became the cheerleaders standard chant. "GET ON OUT OF YOUR SEAT" and a sideline routine to the sound of "FREAK-A-HOLIC" stretched cheerleaders performance abilities. Both pom pon and cheerleaders were taught the camp dance routine to "THIS IS IT"

Our squad was so spirited they won the spirit stick 3 out of 4 days of camp and brought it home with them. The cheerleaders also came home with a plaque for the "Most Improved". Days spent at camp really taught the spirit squad routines, coordination and the important quality of unity!

Tennis Teams Have Tenaciousness Plus Forehand Power

"Tennis anyone?" Practice was the key for the 1988 Jet boy's and girls' tennis teams. Fundamentals were emphasized by Coach Alan Rebensdorf. Smashes, slams, and hard-to-return serves were part of the game. Encinal's players seemed to have a lock on forehand power above and beyond any other stroke. Valerie Price who captained the girls' personified "spirit" and she parlayed a strong forehand into a good game.

Five days a week the future Navratalvoa's and Lendle's maintained their practice schedules. A tennis ladder was developed as the players challenged each other for the first five positions. There was at least a challenge per week as players sought a ranking on the team. Once the first four singles players had been established they were played in that order for the duration of the tennis season. Those players ranked fifth on down were used in any combination for the doubles matches. The varsity played five singles matches and two doubles for the league season so ranking as achieved in practice was of great importance.

Individually Veronica Wimer had an overall good game as she served, vollied, and made the ground strokes with the best of players, Lovedeep Grewal and Ryan Freitas assumed the doubles tasks for the Jets. Junho Cheng set his sights for number one player and because he was such a good athelete, totally tenacious, and had a powerful forehand he had a good claim on any ranking as number one Jet player, Tony Kinsley, according to local tennis pro's here at school, also possessed a strong forehand.

When the tennis team hit the courts everyone knew they were ready to play and had the forehand power players to prove their point.

Volleyball Spikers Score Duplicate Win-Loss Records

Twin win-loss league records were recorded by Volleyball Spikers of Encinal.

The Varsity Volleyball team, coached by Carlos Ferrer, finished their season with a record of three wins and sixteen losses. Unfortunately the league stats that showed three wins and eleven losses was also a new record. One consolation for the girls came when they demolished Presentation High twice.

The Junior Varsity team coached by Charles Jackson, amassed a seasonal statistic that featured five wins, thirteen losses and included three league wins and eleven losses. The J. V. also flatteded Saint Elizabeth High twice.

Mellisa DeGuzman of the Varsity and Josephine Cacho of the Junior Varisty both received honors as the most improved players. Melissa also received the Coaches Award, which meant recognition for all around performance and doing a good job. Demelita Labador took the same honor as the Junior Varsity player.

Louisa SueSue received Varsity MVP and All League Player awards. Cathi Evoho, also of the Varsity team, was honored with Co-MVP and honorable mention as All League Player Antoinette Coley took the MVP spot for Junior Varsity.

Encouraged and supported by "Most inspirational players" Rochelle Czajak, Varsity, and Ciny Custudio, Junior Varsity, the Jets took each game in stride, enjoyed the sport as a sport, and worried not about a win/loss record for there was always next year.

Bird Bashers Breed: Genus Badmintonus

"Buy your candy here," "Support your local dentists, munch chocolate," "Help a needy badminton student, buy your Giradelli chocolate munchie crunchie here." These were among the sales pitches offered by coach Ken McCarteney's bird bashing badmintoners. The purpose of the mega chocolate fund raiser was the purpose of new Yonex Badminton Tournament rackets.

At one buck a crunch salespersons were given the added incentive of winning a brand new Carbon X8 racket valued at more than $70. Perhaps the winner aimed at a slot in the business world as Wall Street Securities salesman turned out to be Tina Chin who dethroned the super salesman the preceeding year; Gary Wright. Tina Chin lead out her teammates and won the racket.

Between thirty-five and forty Badminton players started the season. The number of sportsmen turning out for the team was the largest since the sport was established in 1986. One player attributed the turnout to the fact that Badminton was the only legal way one could flip the bird to another in school.

Eleven games and one faculty match were scheduled. The first practice was 23 from 3-5 p.m. Even though it was after the holidays, the practice continued with running drills, defensive clear lobes, smashes, and drop shots.

This particular Badminton team elected two co-captains or were they spirit leaders? The answer to that question was both. Jennifer Manuntag and Robert Bisi were seniors and co-captains and they were so spirited in their encouragement of the rookies that they seemed more like spirit leaders than co-captains.

Snakes Eyes Plus Seven-in-a-Row '88 Soccer Story

"Snakes Eyes," "Seven Come Eleven," and "Two to One" all applied to gambling. Add "eight out of Fourteen" which also worked because all those phrases applied to Soccer and not dice games. "Snake Eyes" applied to the girls who won two of their contests. The boys posted a better record record in that they were victorious in seven of their last eleven games. Overall their victory record extended to eight games of the fourteen that made up their league season.

Some of the more interesting statistics revealed that Ann Murphy was the leading soccer scorer followed by Katherine Adina.

The new soccer team featured a number of players who gave their all. The offensive trio, Matt Parata, Kunle Thomas, and Bret Lindsey scored the majority of the team's goals.

The real tempo controller was Chris Damsen who played center half-back. As the man in the middle teammates passed the ball to Damsen who fired it like a project to the man most open. As any reader can guess Chris aimed often at the offensive trio of Bret, Matt, and Kunle.

The last Salesian game was considered the best team effort of the year. The result was a sweet nine to zip score favoring Encinal's jet soccerman.

Girls' Basketball Pushes Placement Wins 3rd in ESAL

With an interchangeable player system Encinals Girls' Varsity basketball team grabbed 3rd place in the East Shore Atheltic League. When it came to player placement, starters were given a number from one to five. A player's position depended entirely on which of the five numbers she was assigned.

Position assignment and the ever present need for practice was clearly seen in the toughest game the girls played. They took on Bishop O'Dowd whose team members, like St. Josephs, virtually cut their first tooth on basketball fundamentals and so continued their hoop-shoot skills throughout grammar school into high school. Our gals pushed basic skill but their experience was limited in comparison to BOD. That 'games' lesson was BOD 58 EHS 39.

The team's key players were Deonca Dollison, Yulonda Hampton, and Kim Washington. Kim's performance peaked with field goal attempts and rebounds. Yulonda Hampton joined Kim as both were rated among top ten scorers, and free throwers specialists for EHS.

Varsity & J.V. Teams Meet Up With Many New Adversaries

In almost every game played during the 1987 88 Basketball season, not one Varsity or J.V. team member involved with the Jets was doomed to be a bench warmer. The competitive Varsity team, coached by Mr. Johns, had a total of twelve players. The enthusiastic J.V. team, coached by Mr. Young, had a total of ten members all of who had the desire to win.

The varsity team opened their season with a 54 to 52 win over Campolindo High, The Jets remained unbeatable with an amazing 59 to 47 win over their arch foe Alameda High, for their second preseason win of the season.

According to coach Johns, one of California's finest Basketball tournaments was the one in Gridly. Jet Varsity journeyed to Gridly in December 10 to 12. They played Tokay, Monta Vista, and Gridly. The Varsity team came through with a good record against their adversaries in the competition. The varsity team was made up of four Sophomores, four Juniors, and four Seniors, all who wanted to start in a game.

Believe it or not!

Roundballers more commonly called Basketball players put in an amazing 456 hours in the sport this season. These hours represented a fourteen week season, three hours of blood pumping, heart beating action in league games. All this practice produced some fine players.

Guys Play Football Gals Play Volleyball 1988 Men Wrestle

T-Shirts and sweatshirts proclaimed: Boys play football, Girls play volleyball, and Men wrestle; these items of clothing were popular and their slogan told about Encinal's 1988 Men's Varsity Wrestling Team.

Six returning senior lettermen were the backbone of the team. They were joined by four seniors who, as first time wrestlers, also lettered in 1988. Two sophs and a frosh rounded out the thirteen man team. These grapplers won all their league meets except the opening match against Albany.

Jose Nunez, our second year coach who once wrestled for Encinal and presently wrestles for San Francisco State, was backed up by Eric Bustos, another EHS ex-wrestler who graduated in 1987. Between Jose and Eric, the thirteen men on the squad perfected their techniques, avenged their loss to Albany and scored "BIG" at the Central Conference Championship.

At the C.C.C., co-captains Dan Rutschke and Terry Wise hacked their way to the championship of their weight class. Alan Ricketts, for the first time in his wrestling years at EHS, also brought home a conference championship in his weight class. Peter Bobsin, David O'Neill, and Malcolm Otto followed up by pinning second place in their weight class as their triumph. Because of their placement in the top three, the seven EHS wrestlers moved on to the North Coast Sectionals. Only the top three places at the C.C.C. made it to North Coast. But three more EHS wrestlers who snagged fourth place, Jonathan deJesus, Jared Whittemore, and Stuart King, were sent to North Coast as substitutes if needed.

Overall, the EHS wrestlers most impressive match came in the El Cerrito Invitational. Although Moreau H.S. took first, Encinal came in second; because in a do or die situation, Encinal wrestlers took on and slammed powerful San Marin from their odds on favorite position. con't. pg. 65

Coast Sectionals. Only the top three places at the C.C.C. made it to North Coast. But three more EHS wrestlers who snagged fourth place, Jonathan deJesus, Jared Whittemore, and Stuart King, were sent to North Coast as substitutes if needed.

Overall, the EHS wrestlers most impressive match came in the El Cerrito Invitational. Although Moreau H.S. took first, Encinal came in second; because in a do or die situation, Encinal wrestlers took on and slammed powerful San Marin from their odds on favorite position.

What a difference! Last year we only had 15 swimmers. But, this year the swimmers increased with enthusiasm and challenge to 37 boys and girls. Most of the swimmers sharpened their swimming techniques at six o'clock in the morning at the Encinal swimming pool. Then they practiced again after school under their cool coach Tom Murphy.

Through participating in outside leagues and long hours of practice returning sophomore Ruben Tapia was the most promising male member. Ryann Haines and Lovelynn Vanderhorst were among the most promising female members. Returning swimmers, such as, Katherina Burtenshaw, Alex Ham, and also the new swimmers such as, Luiz Vieira, Jernon and Korb Matosich were also very dedicated in their swimming.

This year coach Tom Murphy had a manager to help him named Nikki Harrison. She did most of the time keeping and schedules for the team and cheered them to victory.

With the exciting 37 swimmers, this swimming season was one of the best. They knew that with dedication, good leadership, and team spirit, they were able to challenge any team with rigorous defeats.

Girls' Softball Massive Turnout At Season's Start

Forty girls tried out for the seventeen player slots, that was a surprising turnout. For a while it seemed as though EHS was about to field a nine of centerfielders only. Yolanda Hampton nailed down the centerfield spot for the third straight year. Pitchers Linda Hill and Michelle Dunivin took the mound for a second year and Rachael Chrispy, a third year player, gave notice that she was seeking the most valuable player trophy.

Softball players loved their sport for it demanded their talents five days a week. Practices were held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from three to six p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays were game days. Of the twenty games played, ten of them were at Washington Park, the Jets home field.

Each opponent was played twice, the first two teams played were Moreau and Pinole Valley. Both teams were North Coast participants and considered "powerhouses." San Lorenzo, the third team the Jets faced, also participated in the "88 North Coast play-offs. It was a tough start for a long season.

Last year's team tied for first place in their division but lost the final game in the round robin to Bishop O'Dowd. Vetrans and talented newcomers, combined to make the 1988 Jets softball crew a competitor. Because the yearbook was published before the season ended, only some of the scores were available.

Varsity, J.V. Baseball Teams Slide Into Home

The Encinal High School Varsity Baseball team had a total of twelve players at the start of the 1987-88 season. Of these twelve, only four were returning letterman from the 1986-87 season. These players were Calvin Kyles, Kyle White, John Mason, and Tony Tenorio. The Junior Varsity team consisted of a total of fourteen players. These fourteen were made up of four freshmen, four sophomore, and six seniors. Some of the starting players for the J.V. team were; Rolando Vital, Robert Heggie, Champagne Rider, and Jarid Keller.

The teams were fortunate to have a dry season because they had a lot of time to learn the skills necessary to play the game of Baseball. At 3:15 everyday, the teams hit to the fields. Because of the amount of players on the Varsity team, it was easy for Coach Marr to work individually with his team. He worked with the outfielders at Encinal while Coach Hernandes worked with the infielders at Washington Park.

The overall statistics on the teams were amazing. The J.V. team alone, had an avarage of up to two and a half hours of practice a day. That time accumulated to almost twelve hours a day for a season that lasted almost three months. The Varsity had an equally astonishing agenda for their practices. They started at 3:15 and ended around 6:30 to 7:00 pm. Throughout the entire season, including the game time, the Varsity team played the sport of baseball for Encinal an astonishing 417 hours.

Horizon Publication Date Preceeds All 1988 Track Events

East Shore Athletic league more commonly called the ESAL replaced the ACAL last season, and proved to be no pushover league. The 1988 Jets were in a rebuilding mode as some of the top hurdlers and runners graduated in June '87. The 440 relays and the dash were anchored by the foursome: T. C. Burge, Rial Custodio, Joel Thorton and Art Wilcox. Their spikes, whether for Adidas, Nike, or Puma, were filled by runners who knew their competitive abilities and had beaten their own best previous records. Not too shabby an accomplishment particularly since the '87 team went all they way to North Coast and Missed state by one place.

Less than a four minute mile but faster than most people reading this book was the background of long distance running at E.H.S. In '88 Matt Boone ran the mile in an easy 4:30 but he was closely chased by Noah Hill, Kenny Meagor and Blair Venables.

Jet cinderwomen included Valerie Price, Christine Roveda, and Zoe Merkle. This trio of returning female fast trackers were versatile and dedicated when it came to track events and even more importantly dedicated enough to inspire the new runners to do their best and keep the six year undefeated winning streak of Encinals female tracksters running in the same motion. Detailed statistics, individual records, and terrific track informations was unavailable due to early yearbook publication deadlines.

Our EHS Athletes Win ESAL Awards

Although the year of '87-88 was only the second year that Encinal was in the East Shore Athletic League, we proved to be one of the most competitive teams in the league as we captured our own ESAL awards.

In the fall, Blair Venables, Matt Boone, and Kenny Meagor received awards in the ESAL for the Boys' Varsity Cross-Country team. The Varsity Football team had two exceptional players; they were Toto Suesue and Cornell Miller.

Yulanda Hampton and Deonca Dollison captured the honor of All-League players for the Girls' Varsity Basketball team.

Johnell Miller and JR Rider blistered baskets, assists, and all around fine play. They easily cinched the Boys' Varsity Basketball All-League titles. Luisa Suesue grabbed an ESAL award for the Girls' Varsity Volleyball team.

All in all EHS sports produced athletes who not only competed but were tough enough, talented enough, and lucky enough to snare awards.

Juniors Spirit Soars Commitment Delivers Dreams Made Possible

For the Junior class, the year was a complete success! As the year began, spirit soared high. Through the year many dreams and goals were accomplished and fulfilled. They set out to raise money and spirit within in class and did so. DEDICATION and DETERMINATION were the words to describe the class of '89 this year. Endless hours were spent rehearsing and preparing for spirit week. "CALIFORNIA DREAM" was their theme. The hallway was decorated in all of California's glory.

For the skit, the Juniors came up with a brillant and original script and cast. Everyone who participated gave it their all and just for those few minutes became actors and actresses. The two main characters were Korb Matosich and Ryan Haines as Waldon and Willmadean Weidermeyer.

Many fund raisers were put into motion through the year. Candy sales which raised about $250 and lumpia and taco sales raised $100. During the holiday season, the Juniors sold Santa grams, which were composed of a balloon, candy cane, and a special message sent to friends to promote holiday spirit. These fund raisers earned the Juniors over $750.

With the dedications of many Juniors this year, our "California Dream" was made one of the best.

Alicia Jaramillo, Fall term Vice president did agree, "This year has been the most spirited of all, and I hope that next year will be even better."

Special Days Have Color, Spirit, and Creative Costumes

Special days filled the school year. There were the "H" days: Hat day, Hawaiian day, and even Hillbilly day. Hat day was a traditional photo opportunity day for the yearbook, and Hillbilly day struck on the same day as the job-fair. Hawaiian day probably developed because all the cheerleaders, pom pon girls, and nearly all the guys in school had great Hawaiian print shirts and grass skirts. As a result everyone felt very "aloha" and "hula happy" as they compared the loudest and coolest clothes. Hat day on the other hand tied in neatly with the Soph Hop which was thematically a mad hatters ball.

Color played a role too. Blue and white days were spirit days as people proudly wore their school colors. Christmas time promoted red and green day and with Valentine's Day the color red returned once more.

Some special dress days featured nerds and pajamas. About the only thing missing was "Dress like Bunny Day" in the spirit of Easter. All the students asked agreed the special dress days were fun for they changed the daily run of the classes and promoted creativity and fun.

We're Gonna Boogie Woogie Til We Just Can't Boogie No More

Big bucks, mega dollars, the quest for finances produced fundraisers — the best, most popular, sure fire money machines, were the dances.

Just about once a month during the school year a class or a major school organization presented an evening of rockin' rhythms from 8 to 11 P.M., that featured everythin' from U2's "Joshua Tree" to Cover Girls' "Show Me."

Original ideas and bright new concepts were the trademarks of 1988 high school thinking. For example, themes for events told it all. For openers the leadership class gave their September first dance of the school year the incredible and exciting title "The Opening Dance." As genuine creativity ran rampart the early homecoming forced quick thinking. So the October dance used the traditional title "Homecoming Dance" to catch the eyes. In November, the ingenious rescued the situation and gave the Soph Hop the original thematic title of "The Mad Hatters Ball III." Things were no better in December when the adult boosters club promoted a dance before Christmas.

1988 brought changes as the seniors flatly rejected the traditional senior theme of a Sadie Hawkins dance. Perhaps the best part of the dance was the new idea of a Prince and Princess for each class, and the professional photographs.

These fund raisers not only brought in big bucks, they were fun to attend, and they certainly were far removed from any academic pressures. Most of all these events certainly brought the breath of originality to Encinal, didn't they?

Jet Spirit Rises Once Again

And so it began. Monday, October 19th, started off Spirit Week, 1987. It started with the skit practices, hall decorations, and lots of spirit! Everyone got to laugh at their friends as they dressed up for Nerd Day. The seniors this year came up with a new theme of "Grease 88." The juniors went with their idea of California Dreams which is our school. The sophomores hung a bunch of advertisements as they went with their theme "World of Advertisement". Lastly, freshman class came up with "The Rich and Freshmen" as their theme.

Spirit really arose as noontime activities were completed. Pep rallies included balloon toss, mummy wrap, and many eating contests.

For the assembly, seniors did a rerun of "Grease 88" with Sandy and Danny. The juniors dreamed of being at Encinal high instead of Alameda. The sophomores included four guys running around in diapers for the "Huggies Contest." The freshmen pretended to be richer than the seniors.

But that's not all. The assembly also included our Homecoming Court. As the audiences anxiously waited, the names were announced for the king and queen of this year. The ladies were presented with crowns, roses and sashes as usual. This year our king also received a crown for his royalty.

This year's Spirit Week was one of the most spirited ones in years. Encinal ended their celebration by dancing their spirit away at the Homecoming dance the same night. Jet Spirit really arose once again this year and Encinal will keep it this way.

Student Senate Summary Meet, Debate, Vote, Spend Money, Start It All Again

Meet and debate, meet and debate, vote and then move on to the action decided. Such a formula told the 1987-88 story of the Senate of The Associated Students of Encinal High School. Occasionally everyone felt the pressure of being responsible for major decisions that concerned student body practices and policies.

Homecoming fell in October rather than November. The annual debate on crowns for the Queen and her court seemed to intensify and those senators who were liberal with student finds spent money on new crowns for the girls. Their justification for new crowns was that the ladies of the court would purchase them after the ceremonies, at half price, of course. The most intense debate centered around a crown for the King. Again a liberal spending politics wan and Encinal purchased for her King the first royal male's crown.

Debate raged over student involvement with the community at large and with Senior Citizens in particular. Ultimately the leadership students decided to maintain tradition and serve the Sunday before Thanksgiving dinner to those who appeared at the Mastick Senior Center. Later in the year Sandi Russum appeared before these leaders and convinced them to participate in a program at Water's Edge Convalescent Hospital called LITA. The acronym itself stood for Love Is The Answer. When December arrived all students had turned in permission slips and once a week a different group of Senators left school at noon and participated with the seniors until 2:00 p.m.

Two annual blood drives needled those seventeen and over into providing fresh whole blood for those whose lifes hung in balance. D.A.R.E. challenged student leaders again during the school year to attend grammar schools and give the gospel of "Just Say No to Drugs and Alcohol" to fifth graders. Most Senators found the little kids' questions a mix of fantasy and fact; however, regardless of questions they felt this involvement helped younger kids get a better perspective on a major problem.

December produced leaning towers and walls of solids in the form of cans. It was the annual drive for canned food for the needy at Christmas. As cans were collected and donations tallied from first period classes the food was stored in Room 10. Once the various students began to pile the cans in SERIOUS shape. In actuality Room 10 became a maze of canned goods one had to trip through before one could find a seat. All in all the canned food drive drought in over 2000 cans of edibles for those in need and the Senators went home for Christmas feeling the joy of the season of sharing.

Other debates developed over election procedures and how to produce the Spring talent show. Utimately these verbal altrications were resolved and the actions taken. When you evaluate the year it was one of debate, meet, debate, and action; and the senates actions were positive and productive.

Clubs Raise Money to Please Appetites

Candy, money and food. Such words were the prominent goals of most clubs. Candy sales brought in money and then club members either went to a restaurant or had food brought to the campus.

Spanish club was famous for selling candy, lumpia and cookies. With this added income, the club feasted at La Fuente restaurant and enjoyed a fun-filled day at Santa Cruz.

Every Monday, French Club members centered their meetings on the French culture. Members filled their appetites with French bread while viewing French movies.

International Club, a new club initiated by Hiro Ciulla, planned fattening trips to restaurants of different cultures. Cultural movies were an added excitement to the weekly meetings. Their main fund raiser for the year was the "International Grams" which featured a message in any foreign language.

Junior Statesmen of America, also known JSA, held lively debates during lunch to decide such topics as "Should Santa Claus be arrested for breaking and entering?" and "Should fat people be forced to fast on Thanksgiving?" Both JSA and FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) hosted the Voc Fest on February 11. Information on various careers, such as the Alameda Police Department and nursing, was offered at the job fair. FBLA's fund raisers included Christmas paper and ornaments sales. Officers of FBLA attended a president's conference in Fresno which gave information to every California officer of FBLA about their duties as officers.

Pep Club, another new club at EHS, provided students with noontime dances at a small fee of fifty cents or twenty-five cents for members. The club was started to encourage more school spirit and support for the sports teams at Encinal. During the football season, the club arranged transportation to away-games for football fans.

After a year's absence, advisors Steve Capling and Keri Spaulding brought Key Club back into the club scene. The club's purpose was to be involved in the community in whatever way they could. On February 10, the club sponsored a Teacher's Appreciation Day in which the school's faculty was recognized with special certificates and doughnuts and coffee.

Mystery and Music Set the EHS Stage for Dramatic Year

Mystery and Music were the dramatic themes for 1987-88. In December "Hide and Seek" opened in Encinal's cafeteria theatre. For three nights both students and adults enjoyed the show. The cast kept the audience baffled yet alert as they tried to figure out who killed Jill.

Music, particularly rock captured the future oscar winners as "Bye Bye Birdie" was chosen as our spring production. Seventy-Five actors and actresses tried out for the thirty roles: however, Director Moorhead cast almost fifty students in the show.

By chance the T.V. February sweeps featured Priscilla Presley's version of "Elvis and Me" Just about everyone in the spring production of "Bye Bye Birdie" watched the show as all were aware that Conrad Birdie with his pompadour, thick sideburns, and gaudy gold costumes was an Elvis Presley type. Birdie was cast in February and featured Rich Lingua as Conrad, Val Macpoc as Kim McAfee, Dave Stebbins as Albert and Heather Winkelhak as Rose.

At the end of the year drama awards were given; however at press time only The Bank of America award was known, and that honer went to Lovelynn Vanderhorst.

Class of 90

Sophomores Profit From Mad Hatters Ball

About 300 bodies boogied and gyrated on the Encinal gym floor. The music pulsated, the bodies swayed, and the class of '90 gleefully counted out over $900 in admissions to the annual Soph.-Hop. "Hat Day" which started out several years ago as a photo-opportunity day for the yearbook, was scheduled by Leadership to fall on the day of the Soph.-Hop. As a result the Sophomore's dance theme became "The Mad Hatters Ball." It was the third time in the last five years that hats and pictures provided a theme for a class dance.

Imaginative hats worn to the dance had a triple purpose. First of all, they were fun. Secondly a hat on the head discounted admission to the dance and the $4.00 entrance fee became $3.50. Finally, the most imaginative chapeau's or cap's collected prizes which were McDonald's gift certificates.

Two popular DJ's Ladda Sounds and Sound Quest teamed up to rock the Encinal gym with their up to beat mixes and rad music sounds. The DJ's opened the "Mad Hatters Ball" with a hit song from the Covergirl's "Because of You." Throughout the dance the students gyrated to the latest dance routines such as the "Cabbage Patch", and the "Reebok" as the DJ's played the latest music hits. Other songs they played were "Wipeout" by the Fat Boys, and "Push It" by Salt & Peppa. As the clock winded down to the last fifteen minutes of the dance Ladda Sounds and Sound Quest put the atmosphere in a romantic mood by ending the "Mad Hatters Ball" with a slow soothing song from Roger, "I Want to Be You're Man."

Sophomores Display Potent Talent on Stage

It seemed as if the Sophomore class members were together day and night, before breakfast, after dinner, and during and after school. They dedicated their free time to decorating their hall and improving their class skit for homecoming. Their theme for Spirit Week '87-'88 was "The World of Advertisement."

The Sophomores decorated their hall according to the theme. They used their artistic talents and drew dozens of television sets that advertised everything from Alpo to xylophones and from movies to food to fashion. The class came in third for hall decorations.

On stage the class of '90 picked out their most potent actors and brought TV advertisements to life right here at our Homecoming assembly. For the audience who watched the skit it was like sitting at home in front of the television. They viewed many familiar commercials revamped for a teenage audience. "We continue after the following messages," says the announces.

Imagine a commercial for Stridex Pads "wiping out your pimples." The only difference with these Stridex Pads was that they could dance.

Another familiar commercial; Raid Roach Spray. Everything so far seems normal . . . but wait! These roaches were at least five feet tall and are also dancing across the screen.

Next you hear babies laughing. A Huggies Diaper commercial is aired next. The babies look really cute but something looks very peculiar, about them. Could it be that they look more like Sophomore guys in high school wearing extra extra large diapers?!

Of course a segment of commercials would not be complete without a fashion advertisement. You see what looks like just a group of girls but out pops a guy from the middle of them. He seems obsessed by the girls he's surrounded with. Or could it be the Levi's 501 wash-to-fit jeans they are wearing that he falls head over heels for?

You sigh to yourself saying "What will commercials come to next . . ." as you hear the annoucer saying" . . . and now back to our program."

Although the Huggies Diaper commercial was the biggest hit for the Sophomore skit they came in third for overall class competition.

Academics

English Celebrates "Have a Good Day," It's 601 Years Old

Unique, unequaled and matchless described the sole course every student in school enrolled in for four straight years. That course was English.

Perhaps that unequalled quality developed because English underscored and complimented other courses. In ninth grade History students studied early man, the Greeks, and the Renaissance. Students of that grade level paralleled history when they read in English Ishi, The Last of His Tribe, a fascinating look at the vanished world of early California Indians. Freshmen also dealt with Edith Hamilton's view of Greece in Mythology as well as Myths and Folktales. The Renaissance grabbed them they studied Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet which after all was a rewrite of the ancient Greek tale of Pyramis and Thisbe.

The literary back-up of ancient Greece and Rome struck again in the sophomore year as Medea was followed by Julius Caesar.

Upperclassmen juniors had another year of American history and their English classes complimented history with such readings as: Ethan Frome, The Red Badge of Courage, and The Great Gatsby. Seniors may have taken government but they also read of one nation's ruler named Macbeth. They experienced the bone crunching bloody pre-Rambo heroics of Beowulf blistering Grendel. A few other types in Senior reading who had a tenuous connection to government were known as Oedipus, Hamlet, and King Lear.

Reading was not everything for in English classes one also wrote. Perhaps the most interesting writing occurred when students familiarized themselves with the style of a classic writer. Given a paragraph from work studied, teen age future authors created their own paragraph in that writers style. The editors insisted we include an excerpt or two by student authors.

The more students read the more fascinating items they found. For example, in early Sept. 1987, the San Francisco Chonicle's premier columnist Herb Caen credited the most overused phrase in our language to good old Geoffrey Chaucer in his Canterbury Tales Mr. Caen reported that Hector Lee an emeritus professor of English at Sonoma State U came across the famous phrase when a wayward monk left a friendly lady and said, "Farewell (sic), have a good day." Since Chaucer wrote the tales about 1387 the phrase became 601 years old this year. If you had nothing else to celebrate in 1988, then celebrate the most ubiquitous phrase in English, and really, have a good day.

There was but one thing remarkable about his face, so low as to be shaken by his breath, Mr. Hooper had on a black veil."

Student Response

Agnes Paulette Cooper, a naive little girl of about ten, though not quite at puberty, was dressed in a fashionable garb, as if she just visited a quaint boutique, and had come away with next year's fashion. There was but one odd thing in her appearance. On her dainty little feet, she wore a mud-blotched raggedy pair of imitation leather tennis shoes which seemed to open in the front as if in hunger." Upperclassmen Try Constitutional Interpretations, Freshmen Flaunt Myth and Philosophical Smarts

As the United States celebrated the 200th birthday of our Constitution, the Juniors studied its history, the Seniors studied how it worked, but freshmen, on the other hand, studied ancient cultures in an effort to understand today's world.

For the second year in a row, Juniors and Seniors practiced what the Constitution preached. They attended the 1988 Alameda County section of the California Mock Trials, just as they did in '87. Based on their historical knowledge and constitutional interpretations our students, semi legal-eagles, presented their side, whether defense or prosecution, of the case of the "People vs. Friendly." A genuine judge heard their arguements that involved the Search and Seizure Amendment. To take a Contitutional issue so far definitely called for a celebration for student ability and knowledge of the key to American Government.

The Freshmen, though, took history just a little bit lightly. Some chose not to utilize their knowledge of ancient civilizations, while others discovered that history helped them in English bacause they discussed various mythologies that all civilizations shared and and they appeared ever so intellectual as they reviewed such philosophies as stoicism and epicurianism with their historically less attentive peers.

Who governs? For what end do the governers govern? Why is our political system so different now from its early years? Who will be elected president in ''88? The first three questions many social studies students felt comfortable with, but the last one was anybody's guess.

8,36,7,37 Reflect Math Not Lottery

With a total of 836 math students, nine math teachers were kept busy in 1987-1988.

A new teacher at Encinal, Dennis Knights, taught the only AP Calculus class. Those with a mathematical mind who comprehended the mysteries of calculus numbered seven.

Two Math Analysis classes had thirty-seven students. Those who ventured in major math were more numerous at this level than at the AP Calculus stage. Kathi Vierra and Alan Rebensdorf guided the thirty-seven through the subject matter.

Geometry classes, conducted by Coleman Feeney and Alan Rebensdorf numbered 143 students.

Algebra classes ranged from Algebra AB to Algebra II and had 396 students. Classes in these subjects were taught by Virginia Pratt, Marta Skala, and Lee Stanford.

All students needed math. Math skills, Consumers Math and Competency Math were also passed on to those who had no desire for the intricacies of math analysis or algebra.

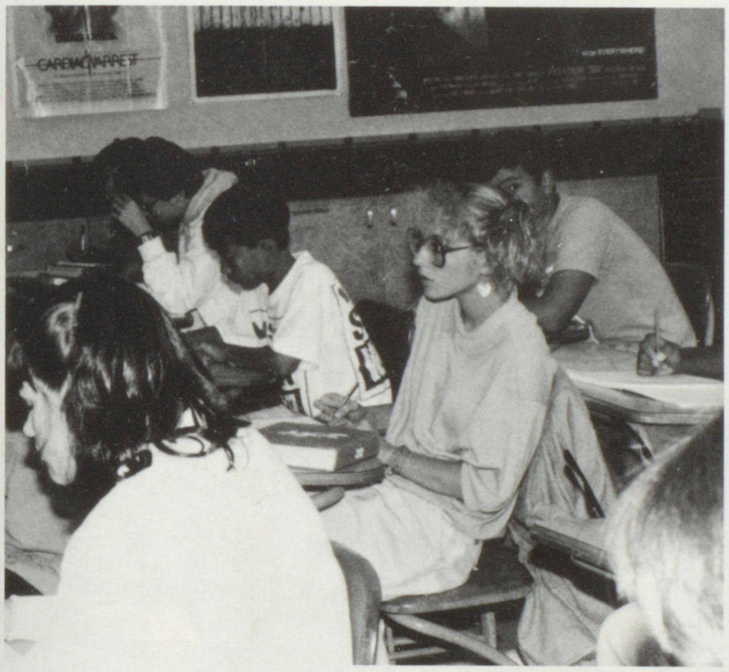
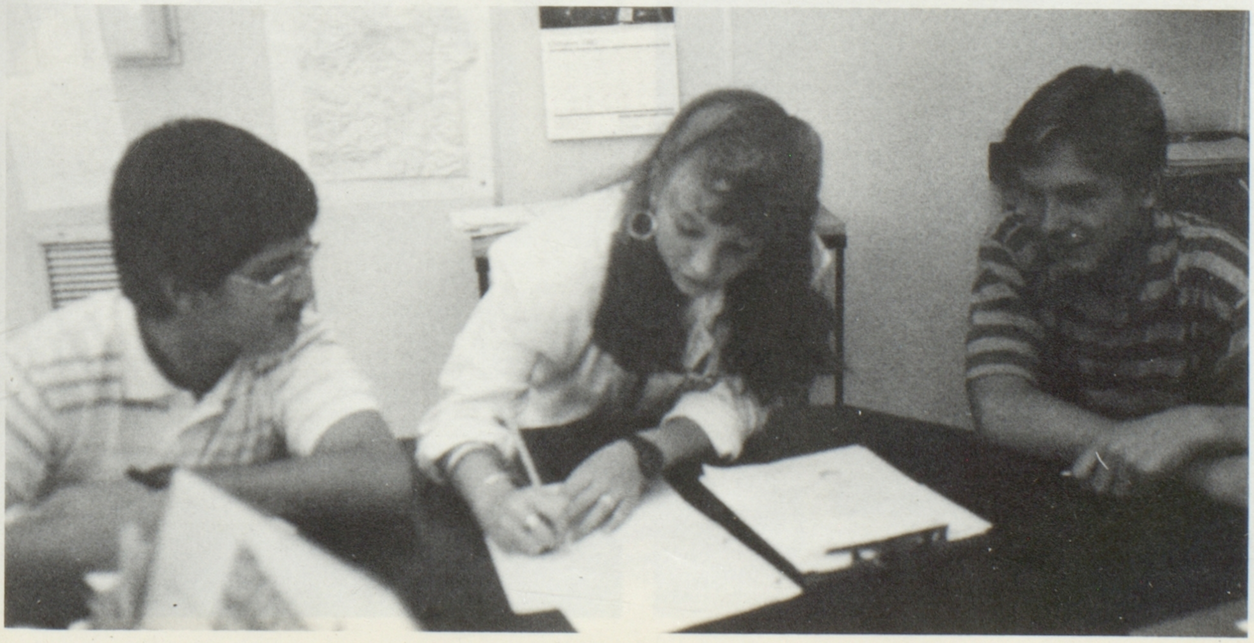
Icthyologists Nets Science Students

Icthyologists they were not but they cast their attention to the waters of the bay because mother nature provided student scientists with a rare phenomena. For the first time in twenty years, in this area, herring by the ton spawned in San Francisco Bay. Hundreds of boats full of fishermen happily hauled in herring. While herring was not a popular food for most Americans, the little fish provided a great learning situation for Biology and Marine Biology classes.

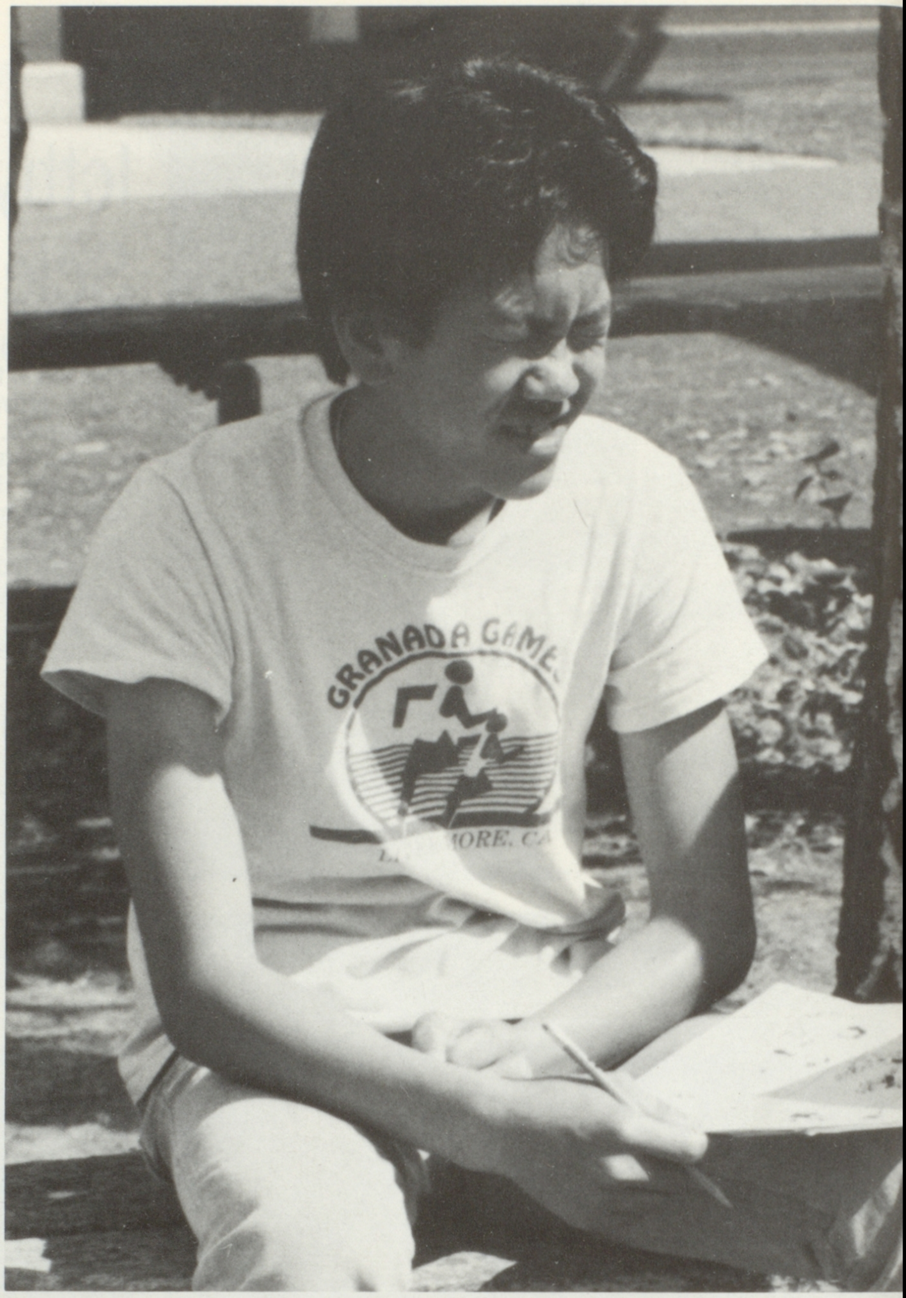
Students researched the herring populations, the temperature and even salinity of the water, and chemical analysis of the water. They even studied how the weather conditions effected the hatching of fish eggs. Twice a week for four weeks students tried to learn about the size of the fish and the size of the herring population. If such studies were not enough, the budding Icthyologists of Encinal also comprehensively dissected true fish, such as bass and trout, and cartilagenous fish such as shark.

The one thing that everybody knew was that the population of herring, smelt, perch, and striped bass increased and that resulted in a big fishing summer.





Become Successful Is Special Ed Challenge



Education came in many different classrooms. Some classes had honors students and some classes had individuals with great disabilities. Encinal had two groups under the special ed. title, special day class and resource. Both classes provided special help and alternative ways to learn.

It was the goal of the special ed. dept. to provide every student with as many opportunities possible to succeed in both the school setting and their community.

The resource program provided an opportunity for students to seek extra help in areas of need. Special day students spend 51% of their school day in self contained classes. They were lucky in their academic ratio of teachers to students which was considerably lower than the average classroom. Because the federal and state agencies provide extra funds, the special education teachers had adult aides.

One on one, the low number of students per class, the encouragement that came daily after a drill in which the student had improved were all reasons that made resource and special ed. unique.

Donahue and Ophra often featured people on their programs that either lived differently or had major problems. Some of their guests lost tons of weight or overcame suicidal tendencies when they improved their self esteem. Special ed. students often had the teen-version of low self-esteem, but once in special education classes they built their self esteem, improved their education, and their life.

EHS Students of French and Spanish Aim for Bilingualism

"Converso se leía en la literatura y se escribría." Translated: converse, read the literature, and write. These were areas in which students of the language of Spain concentrated. The largest Freshman class in Encinal history promoted people who attempted bilingualism in either English and Spanish or English and French.

456 students were enrolled in foreign classes. Miss Sanchez was head of the Spanish department.

Bilingualism started with the basics: vocabulary, the alphabet, numbers, conjegating verbs and learning grammar rules. Advanced Spanish and French 3H, 4H, and 5H concentrated more on composition and essay writing.

The Spanish and French cultures were exposed to the students through class discussions, newspapers, films and movies, and short stories. Slides of Mr. Fong's personal experiences in France was also a treat in teaching the students French customs and France the country.

What's new? There was a school foreign exchange program with the lycee Auguste Bouvet in Romans, France. Mr. Preminger, an Encinal English teacher chaperoned Matt Boone, Christin Irwin, Ann Murphy, and Amy Willis for three weeks in France. They stayed with the families of French students for two and one-half weeks, followed by a four day stay in Paris.

Coach Nixes Archers Aims to Split Apples

Physical education featured many health orientated, body building, and sweat stimulating activities. The physical exercises most students enjoyed were volleyball, pickleball, and archery.

When it came to volleyball and pickleball, both activities held friendly yet fierce tournaments. Volleyball teams competed against each other and played two out of three games. After the first round of competition, participants divided into A and B teams: A's competed against each other, while teams B's, already out of the tournament, also played hard against each other. The winning team received a "sweet" award, a popsicle. For added excitement, lunchtime championships were conducted for the winning teams of each P.E. class. They played against each other to prove who was the true champion team of volleyball.

While pickleball did not feature lunchtime tournaments, competition was just as lively as volleyball. Games were won when a team scored seven points and the winner had to survive two out of three games. Tournaments were held for both single and double players.

Rumor had it that students suggested the best archers be allowed to split apples a la William Tell but Coach Bill Abromitis nixed the archery concept.

Once the wild ideas were dismissed the realities were studied. In order to have archery, bows and arrows, as well as hay bale targets were needed. Although bows and arrows could be supplied, targets proved a problem. Bales of hay were not in the P.E. stock room, no one in Alameda grew hay, and no store sold hay. However the arrow aimers had Sandy O'Rourke as resource woman, and as usual she solved the problem.

Music Makers March for Shrine and St. Pat

Tambourines, violins, and harps were nonexistent in the bands fielded by Encinal this year. But there was something new in '87-88. Beginning band reappeared as a class when enough students signed up for such a class and because there was an available teacher. First and fifth periods were the two times a day the beginning musicians met to make their sounds even though they had no tambourinists, violinists, or harpists.

In a more serious vein, Encinal did field a marching band. To make music and march in complicated patterns was no easy task, but the band succeded in doing both. They played at our Jet football games and were invited to be one of the bands at the Shrine All-Star Football game in Palo Alto in January. Band members really liked the chance to perform at the Shrine game because, as one music maker put it: "That football game combined college stars, high school musicians, and the caring general public all coming together to help really young kids." Although the marching band missed the annual Veteran's Day parade in November, they were ready in their blue jet uniforms to toast the wearing of the green as they marched for St. Patrick in Oakland's St. Patrick's Day parade.

Concerts provided the Jazz and Intermediate bands with showcase performances in February and later in the spring sound-off in April. The drug awareness program, or D.A.R.E., also benefited from the Jazz band's talents when the musicians concertized for them also.

Like any other group in school, band members recognized their own and raised money to cover costs that constantly arose. A winter bake sale covered some transportation costs. Awards went to outstanding musicians and Katie Franklin and James Proulx represented EHS music makers in a solo ensemble festival.

R.O.P. Participates in Second Job Fair

The Regional Occupational Programs courses offered at Encinal High zeroed in on education and experience through instruction and on-the-job training. The courses offered were: Automotive Trades, Food Managment/Service, and Word Processing. Under Word Processing was typing. Typing 1 was changed to keyboarding.

Automotive Trades was a course designed for students who wanted to understand industry need for entrance into the Automotive Repair Field. Areas of subject included in this course were: the fuel system, carburetor, headlights, ignition, distributor, battery and starter, tune-up, transmissions, and brakes. This class was taught by Mr. Potter.

Another course offered was the Food Management/Service course. It offered students to receive hans-on experience through a student operated restaurant located on campus site, called "The Blue Bistro," which opened for a second year of operation. Mr. Terry Brandon, chef, introduced to the students the basic skills as; kitchen helpers, bus persons, waiters/waitresses, catering, and other occupation positions. The students enrolled in this class learned to prepare a variety of dishes throughout the school year.

There were 60 students enrolled in Ms. Bessard's Word processing class. The objective of the class was to prepare the students for job entry skills in word processing equipment. Assignments included machine operation, which were AT&T and Amtex word processing computers, transcriptions, improved language skill, timed writings, grammar punctuation, spelling, sentence structure, and office procedures. Ms. Bessard and her class celebrated with the holding of the second annual Job Fair, which was held at Encinal. The Job Fair had corporations that showed the job marketing opportunities.

After these teachers taught the students at Encinal the business necessities, the business world should have been for some of the finest business men and women around.

From Mr. Goodwrench to Computer Graphics in Industrial Education

At Encinal industrial Educational Classes were offered to the students. They were a combination of career-oriented and art classes. These classes were an introduction to different area in vocational education. The classes offered included Auto Shop, Mechanical Drawing, and Wood.

Fundamental auto mechanics, repair and maintenance of cars dominated Auto Shop. Theories on engines and systems from hands on tune-ups, tool use, and safety procedures were the basics of Auto Shop. Three periods of future Mr. Goodwrenches worked on different cars all year long.

"Mech Dwg" as some affectionately called it gave first year mechanical drawing students all understanding of the need of accuracy. As a matter of fact "STAN" became part of every draftsman's life. "STAN" stood for speed, technique, accuracy and neatness. Without STAN as part of a draftman's being there would be no well done drafting.

As one advanced in drafting our students had different areas to choose from and to advance their techniques. Second, third, and fourth year draftsmen chose from computer graphics, architectural drafting, structural drawing, and machine drawing. Computer graphics specialists used the cad program on a computer. The Architectural interested designed and planned homes for the twenty-first century. Structural drawing focused on elaborating on building that responded to governmental and people needs. Schools, accounting offices, and scientific facilities fell into this last category.

Machine specialists and marine draftsmen zeroed in on individual parts, boat-shapes, and anything else that was needed. They could come up with anything from an air conditioning part to helicopter specialties. The best part of this class was the pre-engineering credit that the artful drafters ammassed.

Wood shop produced a new generation of carpenters. The band saw was not a musical instrument but the mortise machine made square holes. These were only two tools the masters of woodwork used in class. Among the more fascinating were end tables, cafe tables, kitchen utensils, and night stands.

Artistic Students Sculpt, Design, and Illustrate Encinal in Creative Style

The world of art at Encinal consisted of a variety of artistic tools such as: water colors, pencils, crayons, glue, clay, and plants. The classes offered were: Art 1-4, Ceramics, and Ornamental Horticulture.

Art 1 focused on basic skills such as drawing, painting, sculpture, two and three dimensional design, layouts, and printmaking. Art 2 was a course aimed at watercolor painting, acrylic painting, layout and lettering, cartooning, and creative composition in mixed media. Art 3 was designed for advanced and serious students who were interested in learning to develop and appreciate their artistic strengths. Art 4 was a course designed for the even more advanced and more serious students who had enthusiasm in exploring careers in art such as: Interior Design, Book Illustration, Graphics, and Fashion Art Design.

In Ceramics 1 students were exposed to the art of the potter. The course involved hand building of the clay. In Ceramics 2 the students explored the materials with a technical awareness. Students were expected to advance their manual skills in hand building or on the potter's wheel.

Ornamental Horticulture was a class that gave the students an opportunity to operate and maintain the campus greenhouse. The course was designed to instruct students in nursery practices, lawn installation and maintenance, plant production, pruning, and pesticide treatment of plants.

The students os Encinal proved to be very artistic as they managed to work extra hard at improving their own individual style and talent.

Grades and Helicopters Turkeys and Inspections Mix in Making ROTC Year

Good grades, turkeys, and helicopters combined with practice, parades, and weekly inspections were the elements that combined, mixed, and mingled to produce the 1987-88 R.O.T.C. year. The 138 cadets followed a rigorous schedule all year. They drilled and then drilled some more every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. In class on Tuesday and Thursday those same precision military marchers tried to drill into their minds the materials presented, on such various subjects, as map reading, coordination of grids, and leadership training and discipline.

R.O.T.C.'s program featured three companies who competed against each other time after time. Which team would the best prone rifle team? Who would be in the best squad? Which platoon would score the highest grade point average? The answers came at the end of the year when all the events, competitions, and efforts were added together for a score. In May 1987, long after the 1987 yearbook was in the hands of the publishers, Company A won top honors for the third year in a row. The "A team" so to speak, aimed for a repeat victory in 1988; however, because of publication schedules the 1988 victor can only be reported in the 1989 yearbook.

Many of the R.O.T.C. cadets felt the best event in the current school year was an event, thanks to the U.S. Navy and Navy personnel, that promoted inter-service co-operation rather than rivalry. It was the helicopter rides around the bay from Alameda's Naval Base to Treasure Island and back. The 62 cadets who choppered out and back enjoyed their flying experience totally and praised inter-service cooperation. "Inter-service rivalry" as one cadet put it "should be kept to the Army-Navy football classic."

Baseball and Bridges Part of '88 Horizon Celebration Theme

What did Willie Stargell, The Golden Gate Bridge, and the presidential race have in common in 1988? That's right, they all appeared in the Horizon as part of the Celebration '88 theme. Willie Stargell, a 30 year graduate of EHS, was inducted into the baseball hall of fame; The Golden Gate Bridge celebrated its 50th anniversary, with an estimated 800,00 people on the span; and almost everyone celebrated their reasons why their candidate was supposed to win in '88.

Celebrate the change of companies. Taylor provided the Horizon staff with their own computer and the Student body with a first: four extra pages of full color which featured Homecoming in all its glory.

Seven of the fourteen staffers returned from last year's book and they trained the inexperienced seven. Each staff member had about four to five layouts and as they learned they created layouts.

Our junior journalists snapped and cropped pictures, drew layouts, wrote and typed copy that finally passed the editor's desk. These methods of work were a celebration!

TOP TEN ACADEMIC ACHIEVERS

Andrea Cunanan

Michelle Keegan

3.9, 4.0, 4.013. 4.125 all of these were not computer figures or NASA indexes. They were the plain old average grade point of top ten students. The '87-88 edition of the best of students scholars featured the top eight who really ten. Confusing as the foregoing may sound our top ten people had to share eight spots. The valedictorian slot of '88 belonged jointly to Andrea Cunanan and Mike Tinston. Who was first? Did Andrea win that spot because of her alphabetical advantage?

Third ranked Kenny Meagor was actually second and thus salutarian even though he was counted as third. No arguments developed for fourth. The number four scholar spot was held by Tina Chin. However, when one looked at the fifth spot all sorts of trouble errupted. Heather Winkelhake and Michelle Keegan tied for fifth. If alphabetically Keegan was fifth was that a fair shake for Winkelhake who became sixth even though she really was fifth!

These academic achievers studied and pushed hard for high grades in their efforts to insure their attendance in college. Many of the top ten were enrolled in advance placement courses recommended by their counslors and their desire to be prepared in their fields of endeavor. Taking such courses made it easier for these students to apply to colleges of their choice.

The top ten participated in different school clubs, school sports, and other extra curricular activities. They also worked after school to fill in some of their free time and to get a feel of the real world. During their years at Encinal High School these yearners for academic sucess got the most they could out of school.

TO FOLLOW YOUR DREAMS

If you have a dream
Don't let it go;
Don't forget it,
Just reach for your goal.
No matter what people might tell you,
No matter what they will say;
If it is your dream,
Don't let it stray.
Practice makes perfect,
It's all up to you;
There's nothing that anyone
Can do except for you.
Through hardship or turmoil,
Through times that are rough;
Only you can achieve it
If you can stay tough.
So no matter how far away
Your accomplishment may seem;
If you want it enough,
Just follow your dream.

First Year for Freshmen Lasts With High Spirits

The Biggest Class to hit Encinal in 11 years was the Freshman class of 1991. With 324 students strong, it was no wonder why they "Flashed out" their Language, Social Studies, Life Science, P.E., ROTC, a type of Elective, and some sort of Math including Algebra and Geometry.

Class officers were chosen early in the fall. The President, Missy Cotton, was the main force behind raising funds for the class of "91." Places were laid to raise funds via a Candy sale, some sort of delivered message, and a non-candy sale which was their first fund raiser. It was held on Dec. 14-18, 87. It generated their first funds.

which first debut was at the Homecoming assembly.

The skit showed that the Freshmen at E.H.S. are not as poor as they may seem. Toward the middle of the skit, the Freshmen, dominated by money only, controlled Encinal High and started to "Clean Up" some of the higher classmen.

Overall, the year was full of excitement as well as grief. With the thought of a following year coming, the Frosh. class started to make plans for the year to come.

Freshman are a unique part of the E.H.S. spirit which they did so well in. The class of 1991 finished the year with high spirits.

To the class of 1988:
There are times in life when:
You think you know another person, but you really don't,
Some one you really trust betrays you,
Some people don't believe you when you're telling the truth,
or some people don't understand what you're trying to say.
As a result, life can bring happiness and excitement as well as sadness and pain. So, don't let other people deceive you, whether by looks or by words, because people do change and nobody is perfect.
